Dear Members,

The Social Club Committee takes this opportunity to welcome all new members to the firm and hope you enjoy many happy hours amongst us.

As new members to the firm we hope you will all join in and support our activities arranged by the committee. New members bring new ideas so don't be backward in coming forward. Give your ideas to any one of the committee members.

If new ideas are the perobjacative of the new members then surely we can expect some wisdom from some of our "old timers." So how about a few articles on your experiences. Perhaps some could tell us about the history of "Bells."

It's your magazine, so it's your contribution which makes it better.

We wish to introduce Glenise Tumai, of Mask Preparation Dept. Glenise came forward last September, when we were in a desperate position, re the printing of the Ding Dong, and offered to type and stencil our magazine, which she has very competently executed as you will all agree.

Thank you Glenise

Jack Donker is now Secretary of the Social Club

Peter Crow is now one of the Co. Editors for the Ding Dong.

T.V. NEWS

Firstly from the American front - If the last season seemed to have a theme it was "What's new, Copycat?"

A.B.C. for e.g. tried to cash in on "Bonanza" with "The Big Valley". For the Cartwrights were the Barclays, for Lorne Greene there was a silver haired ranchgal by the name of Barbara Stanwyck.

"I dream of Jeanie" was a bad second to "Bewitched" - An astronaut (who else) discovers the heroine show is a genie - a refugee from the Arabian night, - who lives in a wide-bottomed bottle (where else)

Even our old favourite "Mr. Ed" inspired emulation with "My Mother, the Car" yes you've guessed it, a talking car, and a 1928 convertible at that. Jerry Van Dyke, (Dick's brother) is the hero and "Mother" (who returns to earth from celestial regions as a voice in the car radio). If you're interested Ann Southern is "The Voice

For "Kissin' Cousins" fans - remember the Elvis film hit some time back, well it's now being made into a series, but control your self girls, no Presley. How-ever will you settle for Edd (Kookie) Byrnes? Latest report says he's great in it.

There are two things you'll never see on T.V. A movie shown for the first time and a movie shown for t e last time.

How's this Shirley Temple fans - the latest fad overseas is for a S.T. Movie Parade. Channel 9 Sydney had bought a series of 15 of her now famous films for screening on Sunday mornings. The big question will these movies prove as popular now as they were in the thirties? I think so .... just for the interested, before reaching the grand old age of eleven, Shirley had starred in 22 flims. All box office smashes.

Mr. Magoo (That loveable Short-sighted cartoon character) has gone back into History in a new series just completed. Our hero features in dozens of different roles from Classic Adventure stories in His., and Literature - "Count of Monte Cristo", "Robin Hood", William Tell", "Moby Dick", "Sherlock Holmes", "The Mikado", and the long-nosed swordsman "Cyrano de Bergerac" to mention just a few.
Sounds like real fun.

Britain has gone for "Peyton Place" in a big way. It's running on all but one of the commercial networks there. Anglia T.V. in Norwich, is showing it as a one hour show. Perhaps we may follow their lead.

A new, zanier-than-ever comedy film based on the exploits of the well-known P.T. 73 crew of McHale's Navy has just been produced in Hollywood. Titled McHale's Navy Joins the Air Force, this is at least one noticeable difference from the T.V. version; this time around, it is without Ernest Borgnine. Apparently Borgnine didn't see eye-to-eye with the studio as regards to salary, and there were, too, numerous squabbles and feuds he had been engaged in with the rest of the T.V. show cast.

MOVIES:- Who said movies were not popular? How's this, Australia's 19 mainland Metropolitan T.V. channels show an average of 200 a week Melbourne with 50-60, Adelaide 50, Brisbane 40, Sydney 40, Perth 10, Perth has three channels, and the other cities have 4 each. New Yorkers seem on an average 180 movies a week, spread over 9 channels. But their viewing hours are from 9 a.m. to 4.30 a.m. It is a great shame that the N.Z.B.C. does not seem fit to screen more than one a week, it has been proven time and time again overseas, that Movie Parade is by far the most popular, PROGRAM TO HIT T.V. screens. But as long as the Government controls all programs, and channels we the paying public just do not count

To close this month I must tell you about a friend of mine in Sydney - You know, he's been watching so many decimal shows, he scrubs his hands before he changes channels.

See you next month.

The Social Club urgently requires the services of two or three of the older members of the staff to act as committee members, of the Social Club. We have lost three of our senior members and our President is leaving for Australia soon.

Who will take over the reigns of this active club??

Please approach any of the committee members listed in the front of this magazine if you are even a little bit interested in assisting your club.

There are vacancies for:-

(1) Someone with an artistic flare

DING DONG SKETCHES: N.B. There are none in this issue

(2) A gestetner operator Printing of Ding Dong

(3) An editor, Proof reader, Compiler

(4) Block Booking Organiser

(5) And soon a President for the Social Club.

(6) Subscription collectors

If all these jobs are left to one or two people it takes a lot of time so chip in and help your Social Club help you

Hi there Ding Dong,

Once again as I promise, I have a wonderful new show for you. Unfortunately the party are in N.Z. two nights only, one night in Wellington, the other in our fair city. I personally will guarantee a night of wonderful entertainment, so come along relax and enjoy.

Good luck to your magazine, and as this is my last show of the year, I would like to wish you all the best in the future.

Hope to bring you some more top shows next year.

All the best,

BENNY LEVIN.

Nice of you, Benny Levin, to drop a line, we know you are such a busy person.

Thanks for your good wishes, and for your personal interest in us. We really love your shows and are looking forward to the next year show season.

Diamonds from the sea14½ Carat Blue White Found On Boat

Mr. Sam Collins, the Texan Millionaire whose diamond mining craft Barge 77, was wrecked on the beach of Chaimais Bay, 60 miles north of Orange River mouth on July 1st, is not complaining about his luck.

In salvageing the plant from the wrecked barge his men found in the ball mill on board the diamond recovered since they began prospecting on the West Coast about 2 years ago.

It must have been picked up by the barge about three hours before she beached, Mr. Collins said. It was a 14½ carat blue-white diamond worth about £7,00 in the rough and more than £10,000 when cut. But Mr. Collins does not intend putting it on the market. "I am keeping it as a souvenier," said the 50 year old millionaire.

The lull in his sea diamond operations, caused by the wreck of Barge 77 ended on September 15th when Barge 111, converted in Cape Town arrived at the prospecting ground.

A larger craft than Barge 77, she could recover between 400 and 500 carats a day or about 50% more than Barge 77, a former tank landing ship of 5,000 tons, she should begin operations on October 15th, he said

Recent Outstanding Achievements By Members of Our Maori Race

High Honour For Maori Youth.

A Maori apprentice, Mr. E. Beazley, aged 18, has been awarded the British Cable Makers' Association gold medal.

Mr. Beazley obtained top marks in the practical section of the Electricians' Registration Board May examination.

Commenting on the 96% mark Mr. Beazley obtained in the examination the principal of Auckland Technical Institute, Mr. R.A. Keir, said Mr. Beazley was a full-time student at the institute in 1962, when he attended the pre-apprenticeship electrical course for Maori youths. Mr. Keir, said that to have reached the degree of skill required to pass the examination in the minimum possible time was a creditable performance. To secure the top mark was an outstanding achievement.

A 20-year-old Maori Boy, Eddie Makiri, won the title of King of the Fourth Catholic Youth Ball.

He won the title and a return trip by air to Australia by selling the most tickets for the ball. His total was 155 tickets.

Eddie was one of 50 boys and girls representing Catholic parishes throughout Auckland who entered the competition.

Proceeds from the ball will go towards the furnishings of St. Catherine's Hall, Three Kings. Formerly a residential Hall for 20 Catholic training college students, it has been bought by the Catholic Youth Movement for use as a training house.

The New Zealand mezzo-soprano Kiri Te Kanawa tied for second place in the final of the Sun Air contest in the Sydney Town Hall on Saturday night.

Serge Baigildin, aged 31, born of Russian parents in Shanghai, was the winner. He is a tenor.

Donald Shanks, aged 25, a bass from Brisbane, tied with Miss Te Kanawa.

Miss Te Kanawa won the Dame Nellie Melba Challenge Trophy in the City of Sydney's Eisteddfod this year.

She also won the Australian Sun Aria in Melbourne.

How Many of Us Know the Origin of the Three Fingers in Carvings of Maori Figures????

Mr. S. Waru, secretary of Nga Tai E Wha, wrote this interesting article:

He states: It is true, that some threefinger carvings commemorate historical happenings to ancestors. But the spiritual significance, which is much older, has been over-looked.

"In answering the question, 'Why are there three fingers on Maori carvings? I wish to put at rest the minds of some of us who wrongly believe that the Maoris were worshippers of stone idols and wooden images.

"On the contrary, the Maori of old believed in God. Long before Christianity was introduced to my people they knew how to pray.

"During a drought they prayed for rain. When fishing they prayed that fish be plentiful. There were prayers for everything appertaining to living.

"To clarify the question of the three fingers, I must refer to one of our many ancestral treasures handed down to us, not in book form written in 1814 on the arrival of Samuel Marsden, but through the carvings of our ancesters, before even the historical migration 600-odd years ago.

From Hawaiki roa, Hawaiki Pa Mamai, I quote:

Here by ritual I prepare myself to face the universe
By the ritual of the earthly realm,
By the ritual of the heavenly realm,
By the ritual which enabled our ancestor Tane-Nui-A-Rangi to ascend the firmament even unto the heaven of ~~unknewm~~ Heavens.
There he met: Io-Matua-Kore (God of the parentless), first finger, Io-
Nuku (God of Earth), second finger, Io-Rangi (God of heaven), third finger
From who came the three baskets of knowledge:
Te Kete-Tuauri (The basket of good and evil) first finger
Te Kete-Tuaatea (The basket of material knowledge) second finger
Te Kete-Aronui (The basket of spiritual knowledge) third finger
Brought down by our ancestor Tane-Nui-A-Rangi. Planted upon Mother Earth
Unto this World of form, Unto this world of light,
Behold the principles of life.
"Is it a coincidence that when our European brothers and sisters introduced Christianity to us they also brought three baskets The father (God the parentless), first finger, The Son Jesus Christ (God of Earth), second finger, The Holy Spirit, (God of Heaven) third finger
Christianity brought three other baskets as well; Faith, (Whakapono), Hope (Tumanoako), Charity (Aroha). All of the things that Christianity brought fare recorded by the carvings of our ancestors. There are many, many treasures recorded in our carvings that are recorded in the Bible. I would take volumes to present them.
In conclusion, I leave this thought: Is it coincidental that when the Holy Bible arrived among our people it was already written into our carvings?

Music Designed for the Job

Auckland's down-in-the-dumps office girls and bored factory staff may soon be working cheerfully because of a psychological device. It is a music-while-you-work system, but one with a difference. It is specially arranged to relieve tension and give people a "lift"

It's more than soft back-ground music, which is already used by many firms. It has been developed by psychologists, after a thorough study of the work patterns of office and factory employees to see when they have their ups and downs.

Though begun 28 years ago in America, it has only just this month reached New Zealand.

You can hear it in the lifts at the Australia and New Zealand Bank at the corner of Victoria and Queen Streets. The bank has got it in the cafeteria and the ledger machine rooms, too.

It will also be a feature of the £1.5 million Pakuranga town centre due to open late this month.

The system is used extensively overseas in dentists' waiting rooms, offices, factories, banks and hospitals.

The tunes are usually well-known, from shows and hit parades but they are 'doctored' to remove brassy solos, trick arrangements or loud climaxes anything that might take your mind off work.

The music is bright for midmorning and midafternoon, when people are most prone to tension and boredom, and workers slow down. At midday it's mild and restful.

Central Station

The tunes are relayed from a central station Auckland' is

at Penrose and played over loudspeakers

It can be turned on and off by employers. Usually it played over each alternate 15 minutes.

Factories usually get about 80% popular rhythmic music, 14% popular melody and some novelty and concert. Offices receive about 56% popular melody and 38% rhythmic music.

The 'inventors' say it combats tension caused by montony, fatigue, bore dom, noise and anxiety.

It increases efficiency, production and employee good-will, and it reduces errors, accidents, idle talk, absenteeism, and staff turnover.

"I want the Congratulation money on the death of my husband"

"Dear Sir - I am forwarding my Marria ge Certificate and my two children one of which you will see as a mistake"

"I am writing to tell you that my baby wa s born two yea rs old; when do I get his money?"

"I am expecting to be confined shortly. Is Mr. Rodgers, my agent, responsible?"

"You have changed my little girl into a boy; will it make any difference?"

"In accordance with your instructions, I have given birth to twins. They are enclosed here at the foot of the page"

"Please send my money as quick as you can. I ha ve been in bed with the doctor for two days but he doesn't seem to do me much good. If things don't improve I'll be forced to change for another."

"Unless I get my husband's pay I will be forced to lead an immoral life."

"I am sending my Marriage Certificate and six children. I had eleven and one died and was baptised on a half sheet of note paper by the Rev. Mr. Thomas."

IKEBANA

It was pleasing to note that 35 people attended the floral art demonstration given by the talented Mrs. Emi.

All those attending were amazed to see the beautiful creations which grew before their eyes. One or two flowers plus a few leaves or sprays became their breathtaking arrangements, when in the hands of this very talented person.

In making arrangements of this type, many things are to be considered the shape and size of the flowers have to be chosen to blend in with the colour and shape of the vase. Colour contrast between flower and bowl have to be carefully considered. Even the size of the bloom, however beautiful it may be, may spoil the completed arrangement if not carefully selected.

Most of Mrs. Emi's arrangements were of traditional Japanese style which take many years of patience and training to perfect, as she has done. After supper a very appreciative group returned to their homes eager to try their hands at this true but difficult art.

Susan Brettelle

The floral art demonstrations went off quite well, with quite a good attendance considering the weather outside was not fit for dogs. Mrs. Emi made it all look something simple, but there was a definite art to the flower arrangements.

Not many flowers were used only about three for each demonstration but it was the background of twigs and leaves set at appropriate angles that made it look so attractive.

The lady used shallow black bowls, which contrasted with the blooms. Each flower was clipped to a certain height and placed into supporting stand, not just thrust into the vase. Much clipping and measuring was done beforehand.

Tea was put on afterwards and went down well on such a stormy night. The hall was quite bright and cheerful.

Thanking the lady concerned for the demonstrations.

Swimming the Channel

So many people swim the Channel nowadays that the feat is comparatively - as commonplace as getting a century at Lord's and normally rates little more attention.

It seems odd now, looking back, that the man who started the "fashion" for the self-propulsion across the Channel had no ideas about swimming it. He owned a canoe, and decided he would like to paddle across. To save his clothes from getting wet and to keep out the cold he wore a rubber suit.

His feat caught the imagination of Capt. Harry Webb, who, in 1875 planned to improve upon it by swimming from England to France, without a rubber suit or even goggles.

Instead, he wore a pair of oil-skin shorts, and a thick coating of porpoise oil, and set off from Dover with a few helpers in a small boat, who fed him at frequent intervals with what he later described as "lots of coffee and meat balls"

After fifteen hours using the breast stroke all the time Capt. Webb had reached Cap Griz Nez, and his helpers beached their boat while they waited for him to complete the last few yards. But the tide was turning, and Webb lacked the strength to make head-way against it. Relentlessly, the tide inched him away from his objective, and seven hours passed before it turned again and this time carried him on to the beach of Calais.

In the next two years many others tried, but gave up until, in 1877 a young Englishman named Cavill, walked out of the sea near St. Margaret's Bay and announced that he had swum the Channel. The few bystanders on the beach at first regarded him as a hero, but his story became known there were howls of derisive laughter.

Cavill said that on leaving France, instead of striking out direct for the nearest point on the English coast he had headed south-west and then allowed himself to be carried up-Channel on the tide, finally coming in on a line parallel to his original course. He estimated that he had covered nearly 40 miles - double the width of the Channel at its narrowest - and add that thanks to a strong following wind he had completed the crossing in  $12\frac{1}{4}$  hours.

It was this last claim that turned public opinion against him. Webb already famous for his feats of endurance, had taken nearly 22 hours. How could anyone else do it in little more than half the time? Cavill's story became the joke of the day. Its author, embittered at the reception given him, emigrated to Australia and was never heard of again.

Was Cavill trying to pull the public's leg, or did he genuinely swim the Channel? It does look now that our grandfathers were too hasty in their condemnation of him. For, half a century later, the technique he had described in such detail was copied for the first time with astonishing results.

In the intervening years Channel swimming had largely died out as a method of obtaining fame. There had been several attempts, but all had failed except that of Yorkshireman T.W. Burgess, who in 1911, took an hour longer than Webb. It was not until 1923 that the next success came when Henry Sullivan swam from Dover to Calais in  $27\frac{1}{2}$  hours.

Sensation quickly followed, for within a week an Argentinian, S. Tira-boschi, crossed in the reverse direction in only  $16\frac{1}{2}$  hours and a month later an American named Tooth confirmed it by taking 17 hours.
